

BRITISH DRIVING SINN FEINERS FROM ULSTER

ONE ARREST ORDERED FOR WAR FRAUDS

Further Developments Momentarily Expected in Grand Jury Probe of Grafting Charges

MYSTERY ATTENDS ISSUING OF WARRANT FOR PHILLIPS ARREST

United States Commissioner Hitt Refuses to Discuss the Case

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Issuance of a warrant for the arrest of J. L. Phillips, chairman of the republican state committee for Georgia, charging fraud in the execution of war contracts, led to expectations of further developments Monday as the grand jury investigating was held in its deliberations. Phillips, as a member of the firm of Phillips & Stevens, shortly after the armistice obtained a contract from the government as the agent of a conference of lumber dealers to dispose of surplus lumber left from cantonnement and camp construction and other war developments.

No Indictments Returned

Proceedings of the grand jury which so far as can be learned has yet to hand down its first indictment, have been veiled in secrecy, and United States Commissioner Hitt, who issued the warrant for Phillips, beyond confirming reports that it had been issued, has refused to discuss the case. It has been generally reported, however, that lumber contracts have been the first to be considered by the grand jury.

In a recent speech in the house, Representative Woodruff, republican, Michigan, asserted that government auditors had filed reports with the department of justice in September, 1921, showing that Phillips & Stevens still owed the government under their contract more than $1,850,000. While the contract called for the disposal of spruce, pine, hemlock and fir lumber only, Representative Woodruff said, the report showed the firm had sold more than 50 varieties, including much valuable hardwood.

Mystery Develops

The war frauds inquiry of the department of justice developed a mystery concerning the identity of the persons who on Saturday swore out a warrant for the arrest of John Phillips. It became known, however, that four persons appeared at Commissioner Hitt's office late Saturday, and that the warrant was issued shortly thereafter.

At the department of justice, the department of justice is working in the dark, one official said. "We know nothing about it."

Likewise the district attorney's office professed no knowledge and declined that the warrant was not issued at his request.

MANAGING SHOW FULL OF THRILLS SAYS GEO. WHITE

Lots of Grief Attends Career of "Scandals", Here
Tonight

"The life of an acting manager is one of thrills," said George White, the owner of George White's Scandals, the big musical revue which comes to the La Crosse Theater tonight. "It's a case of thrill after thrill," continued the youthful producer. "The interest begins the minute one starts to cast a revue. Some of the things that you will even choose girls stager for you who are of the type that their idea is of salary. The figures they mention is 50 percent of the cases are absolutely impossible and prohibitive. Some of the fair ones in my current show had the audacity to tell me their weekly stipend was $150. Of course, I did not pay that figure, but two of the young ladies succeeded in 'buling' me into the belief that they were worth $125 per week and I foolishly signed them at that figure. Salaries of performers after the first thrill, the initial rehearsal is the second, and thereafter it's thrill after thrill.

"When the show is pronounced a hit, it thrills you, another thrill is forthcoming when the supposed success fails to attract capacity houses. One night it is a sell-out and the next day the receipts may drop anywhere from $100 to $600. On Tuesday night an audience may receive a performance in a very enthusiastic manner and on Wednesday your listeners appear cold and indifferent. Their attitude keeps an acting manager guessing all the time, as it seems almost impossible to satisfy even 50 percent of the people. This same attitude applies to the critics—some will rave about the show and others are free to 'pan' it. So you see the number of thrills one can enjoy in the producing game. My first show netted a profit of $200,000, the second about the same. My present offering, despite the big business we have done in some sections of the country, will not show a profit of $50,000. Many more thrills."

WISCONSIN COWS IN GREAT DEMAND IN WESTERN STATES

One hundred and twenty-nine head of purebred and grade Guernsey cattle were recently shipped from Torrance and Wapawan counties to Oro Idaho in the northern part of Idaho. Out of the west to buy these Badger cattle came R. L. Morgan of the Idaho Agricultural College located at Moscow, accompanied by a banker and the local railroad agent.

This is the second shipment of Wisconsin cattle to go to the "Gem of the Mountains" this season according to the report of A. G. Collentine, extension animal husbandman at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. The southern part of this western state took over 2,000 head of Holsteins from Wisconsin in the previous shipment.

Following the old "Gold Trail" made by the early prospectors to the "Black Hills" of South Dakota, a shipment of grade and purebred Wisconsin Holsteins from Monroe and La Crosse counties recently landed its way.

Plans are now well under way for shipping 100 head of milking Shorthorn to Montana. These cattle will be assembled in Badger counties where this breed predominates and will be purchased directly through the county agents working in cooperation with the breed associations.

GOVERNOR BLAINE CANCELS DATES TO CONDUCT CAMPAIGN

MADISON, Wis.—Governor John J. Blaine has cancelled all speaking dates after June 13, and from then on he will devote himself entirely to his executive duties and political campaign. Two commencement addresses will be delivered by Governor Blaine on June 13. He speaks at the School for the Deaf late in the afternoon of the day and in the evening he speaks at Janesville before the School for the Blind.

Once the campaign is started Governor Blaine intends to devote at least three days a week to speaking throughout the state. His itinerary is now being mapped out by Ralph Imnell, private secretary. Simultaneously Senator La Follette is expected to be in the state and his present plans indicate that he will be back in Wisconsin on June 15.

Horn Didn't Work
A negro chauffeur was haled into court for running down a man. "Yo' Honah," said the darky, "I tried to warn de gentleman, but de horn wouldn't work."

"Then," said the judge, "why didn't you slow up rather than run over him?"

A light seemed to dawn on the prisoner, who finally said, "Why, judge, dat's one on me, ain't it? I nebber thought ob dat."—Pathfinder.

BRINGING UP FATHER

PUBLIC SCHOOL FUND RICHER BY OVER QUARTER MILLION IN FINES FROM DRY ENFORCEMENT

MADISON, Wis.—Enforcement of prohibition in Wisconsin during the past year has resulted in imposition of fines amounting to $305,000, all of which go to the public school fund, the state division of the anti-saloon league reports.

"Enforcement reduces taxes and educates youth," the league says. According to its report, the U. S. court of Milwaukee turned in more money from liquor fines than any other court of the United States, and "uncovered the greatest run-running ring so far discovered, of which everyone went to prison."

As a result of prohibition, the league says that bad debts are being paid up with cash trade becoming the rule. "One year ago the increase in Wisconsin's deposits was 26 per cent, leading all state."

"Wisconsin is becoming as famous for 'dust' as it once was for 'moisture,'" a league statement declares. "Most of the 9,656 retail liquor dealers of the state have gone into legitimate business. The majority of these former saloons are helping to relieve the building shortage."

"Public drunkenness has almost disappeared. While arrests are more than last year, they are far less than in 1915, before war restriction and prohibition began. Cutting out arrests for liquor offenses before, and traffic offenses due to the multiplied automobiles, the improvement is astounding."

BOMB CONCEALED IN MAIL EXPLODED IN MILWAUKEE STATION

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—A three-ounce bottle, a small can and a few matches were the only clues which postal inspectors have to work on in their effort to solve the mystery of the explosion of what is supposed to have been a bomb in a parcel post package in a car at the Union station Sunday, in which a man was seriously injured and ten packages were damaged.

Patrick H. Scannell, a baggageman, was burned severely on the face, neck, hands and arms. He was taken to emergency hospital and later to his home.

The explosion took place at 7:20 a. m. in a baggage car which was part of train 33 on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, bound for Oshkosh.

It is thought a bomb was mailed either with the intention of destroying the car or killing the person to whom mailed.

GOVERNOR BLAINE TO ADDRESS STATE MEETING OF EAGLES

MADISON, Wis.—Thousands of 15,000 Eagles were pouring into Madison Monday morning from every part of the state to open the 10th annual convention Monday. Bands and large motor truck floats accompanied the aeries.

Governor John J. Blaine will give the address of welcome Monday evening after which the first three days will be given over to business sessions and the making of plans for the next year. Thursday will be the big day of the convention when a mammoth parade will circle the business district and march around the square. The grand officers of the state will lead the procession preceded by a platoon of Madison police. Following the officers will be the convention officials and committees, state officers in autos, visiting ladies, delegates, the Fox River valley delegates in a body and then the aeries from all parts of the state.

Sounded Like It
"What's your name?" demanded the police sergeant of the prisoner who had been brought to the desk. "I, Lehigh Low," was the response.

For an instant the sergeant looked puzzled, then he leaned over and said loudly: "This ain't no vaudeville show. Stop your yodeling and answer me."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Resident of La Crosse County

His Candidacy

G. J. Jacobson, 1203 Badger street, not G. J. Jacobs, is the candidate for the republican nomination for sheriff who announced his candidacy Saturday. A mistake was made in the spelling of the name in the Saturday announcement.

Mr. Jacobson has been a resident of this county for forty years and is well known. He is employed as engineer at the Hogan school, and is known as an upright and law-abiding citizen. Mr. Jacobson's nomination papers are being circulated and will be filed with the county clerk this week.

Three-year-old Janie's mother was called away just as she had petted the baby on a bench.

Before the few minutes were up a resounding roar startled the mother. As she hurried toward the bench Janie came running to meet her.

THE REFEREE By ALBERT APPLE

SLUMP
The general business slump, which began in Germany during April, continues. Money is tightening there, banks charging 10 per cent for long-time loans.

That is the cable report to our Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache Herring, stationed at Berlin.

It is important news, more vital than most of the political happenings on the other side of the Atlantic. For the whole future of Europe, for at least the next five years, depends on keeping the Germans at work. Idle nations, like idle men, cannot pay their bills.

PENNIES
Gasoline isn't the only thing that is moving up in price. Steel in the last 60 days has risen an average of about $3 a ton. Common brick advances, New York paying as high as $20 a thousand for what recently cost $16.50. Coffee in many cities rises 2 and 3 cents a pound.

Signs point to a secondary period of inflation. But it will be a short one, if the precedent of past deflationary periods repeats.

A penny is added here, a penny there. The humble penny is what keeps most of us poor and makes a very few rich.

WEISENHEIMERS
Paris is amazed at a hotel porter who steps forth as an authority on the Einstein theory. It develops that he is highly educated, trained for one of the intellectual professions. He says he prefers being a porter, because it pays more money.

The machine shops of America probably have more men who understand Einstein than so-called highbrow circles. Some of the best and most philosophical brains in our country are running lathes. Astronomy and other sciences get more discussion over the dinner-pail than over the noonday-lunch table of the expensive hotels.

The plain people do a lot more thinking than their leaders give them credit for. That is the chief reason the bulk of our great men and women are produced from poverty and obscurity.

EXTINCTION
Wild animal life will be totally extinct on the North American continent, and in Africa and Europe, within a few years. This prediction is heard on every hand at the annual meeting of the American Society of Mammalogists.

Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, museum expert, says: "Nothing in the history of creation has paralleled the ravages of the fur and hide trade, which, with the bone fertilizer trade, now threatens the entire vertebrate kingdom."

In three years, on our continent, trappers have killed 23,801,905 moles, 14,853,316 squirrels and 420,590 beavers.

"Be kind to animals" seems to be limited to dogs, cats and horses. Man, the carnivorous hunter, is a parasite.

DRUGS
Representative Watson of Pennsylvania, fighting the drug traffic, estimates that a million Americans are drug fiends. Roughly, that would be one in 100, which sounds like an impossible high figure, as it probably is.

You can prove anything on paper. If all the statistics that are generally accepted as gospel truth really were true, most of us are crazy, dying of disease, with rats annually destroying national wealth faster than we create it.

PARACHUTE
Would you begin saving up to buy a flying machine if you were sure you wouldn't fall? Probably. The airplane never will become generally used until it is made fool-proof, with most of its danger eliminated. Steps are being made in that direction. London experiments with this device: When a plane starts falling, the pilot jerks out a pocket parachute. As the rush of wind opens it, the safety device lifts the pilot out of the falling machine and drops him gently to earth.

The rest of us will wait until we have reasonable proof that the parachute will not fail to function at the crucial moment.

Australia in Wrong Place
Checking by radio with time clocks in France reveals, so authorities say, an error of 100 yards in Australia's latitudinal position of all maps. "We may have to move Australia—on our maps," says the Scientific American.—Galesville Republican.

Exit Bobbed Hair: Next—

NEWS that the hairdressers' associations are offering prizes for the best methods to be found of making bobbed hair look like it isn't will permit many a man to have an "I told you so" session with the feminine members of his family. Whether it will do him any good—well, that's something else again. At any rate, the to-be-expected reaction is reported to have set in, and the sweet things who cut 'em short are wondering what to do with the straggly ends. Following such fads to extremes is a dangerous business for those who find it important to keep in style. Like plucked eyebrows, of yesteryear, it "dates" the wearer too definitely. A woman is only as old as she looks, but if she has cast her looks into a certain season's mold by some such irrevocable proceeding she'll look like last year's crop in spite of every attention to the very newest waist line and the very latest length of skirt. One suspects that as it becomes more and more certain that bobbed hair is "out" there will be a very active market for hair tonic and false hair. And our current crop of flappers will have learned something by experience. The next time the fad of the moment requires more or less permanent alteration of the features nature provided they will be less interested. The only trouble is that there is a continually renewed crop of floppers who have yet to learn. If a year or so from now some beloved movie actress discovers that she looks well with a ring in her nose or tattooed cheeks, there will be a generation of grandmothers a few years from now using their own disfigurements as a horrible example in the vain effort to teach their offspring the foolishness of fads. But of course they won't learn.

A Typical Beginning

ONE must expect a tendency to exaggeration in the stress of the political campaign, but it is rather humiliating to hear the governor of one's state indulge in grotesque absurdities in the hope of making political hay.

Referring to the Esch bill, in his Fond du Lac speech, Governor Blaine said, among many other things:

"With its passage came the closing of our industries, the throwing of millions of men out of employment, the depreciation of the farmers' products, the stagnation of business generally."

Probably the governor is not unacquainted with history. It is not necessary to remind him that there has been a war, followed by the aftermath of all wars; and that the slump with its unemployment and stagnation was so well under way before the passage of the Esch bill that its sponsors offered it as a partial cure for the ills which Governor Blaine now declares it created.

There is a certain type of stumpy speech canon that is useful to the politics of expediency because it can neither be proved nor disproved. One says it. By reiteration it becomes current. And since it can not be "nailed," those foolish enough to deny it merely give it further advertisement.

But the politics of expediency errs when it presents "bunk" in terms of figures, and it is only when figures are used in this sort of political game that the brand of truth can be applied. Therefore it is to the figures used by Governor Blaine that we turn for a reduction ad absurdum.

Note, if you please, these two statements from Governor Blaine's Fond du Lac speech:

"The annual increase over former years in freight and passenger rates under the Esch-Cummings law is one billion and a half."

"That law would cost the average family one dollar a day extra, or $365 per year."

Get out your pencil, Governor Blaine. Estimate the average family at five people. It is nearer four than five, but call it five for good measure.

There are upwards of 106 millions of people in the United States.

Dividing by five, we find there are roundly twenty-one million families.

One dollar a day for 365 days, for all the twenty-one million families, makes $7,665,000,000 per year.

You see, Governor Blaine, that in one sentence you said the increased cost of the Esch-Cummings law was one and one-half billions, and in the very next paragraph you said it was seven and a half billions.

Don't use figures, Governor Blaine—not numerals. Stick to figures of speech. The latter is five times as great as the former, is it not, Governor?

Be Comfortable

EDISON says the chief reason he can work eighteen hours a day without getting "run-down" is because he keeps his body healthy by never wearing tight clothes. Edison wears baggy suits and loose collars. He never wears tight shoes, a belt or anything that would interfere with the circulation of blood through his arteries. In other words, he doesn't saw cross-grain on nature. Maybe nature intended the human animal to wear clothes, maybe not. Anyway, she certainly never intended us to wear garments that fit like the casing of a sausage.

In wintertime, on streets of cities that have snow and zero weather, you see flappers wearing silk stockings and shirt-waists with V-necks cut so low they expose the throat to the cold weather and icy wind. A man, with a high starched collar and woolen muffler around his neck, marvels that the flimsily-dressed flappers fail to die of pneumonia. The reason is simple: The flapper dresses loosely, allowing her blood to circulate freely enough to keep her warm. Her grandmother, in girlhood, had to bundle up like an Arctic explorer to keep from catching cold, largely because she cramped her blood circulation and other bodily functions by lacing herself into a wasp-like corset.

Men, too, are slowly getting wiser—discarding tight starched choker-collars, painful shoes and plug hats that fit the head like iron hoops. Hygienists believe American women will be health-wise enough to keep their present comfortable way of dressing. Also, they are campaigning to drive some of the same common sense into men. Men, say the hygienists, should copy the women and adopt clothing that ventilates the body. This is especially advisable in summertime, to permit quick evaporation of poisonous perspiration. The average person is haunted by a fear of "taking cold." How about the dangers of "taking heat"? You have noticed, in the movies, that the savages dress loosely, so the air gets easily to all parts of their skin. That probably is the chief reason they are as hard as nails and as healthy as young wildcats.

Southern cotton men would like to "See no weevil, hear no weevil and think no weevil."

No one worries as much over what he makes as over what he gets.

Gerry and the Veiled Woman

BY FRANK W. WILLIAMS

The letter found by Gerry Knight on his desk upon his return from lunch was penned in a feminine hand and read like this:

"I'm in trouble. Will you help me? I know you are adventurous and not afraid. There may be a fight; there may be danger. Please, please help me. Address Blue Eyes, box 292, city."

A puzzled look came into Gerry's face as he read this epistle through twice, very carefully. Where had he seen this handwriting before? And who was "Blue Eyes"? What trouble was she in and what danger might beset the person who tried to help her?

For a moment or so Gerry thought of throwing the letter into the waste basket. Then the adventurous streak which had been so cleverly mentioned by the letter writer asserted itself. Gerry drew himself up to his stalwart six feet one while a whimsical light came into his eyes.

"I'll do it," he said. "It ought to be good sport."

It was the next day that a reply in the same handwriting came to Gerry following his dispatch of a letter offering aid to the address given by "Blue Eyes."

Here was the way this second letter read:

"Meet me in the postoffice at 7:30 o'clock this evening. I'll wear a black veil and a red eucalyptus."

Promptly at the hour directed Gerry was on the spot, waiting with pleasurable excitement. What would the girl be like? What sort of adventure and possible romance would she lead him into?

But Gerry's strong desire to see the girl and learn at once whether or not she was as pretty as he told himself he had a right to expect met with disappointment when the lady arrived just as a sonorous clock was striking the half hour.

Blue Eyes was slim and straight and youthful, apparently, but the veil she wore was black and impenetrable, and she resolutely refused to take off the veil or even lift a corner. Still her voice was pleasant and reminiscent. Where had Gerry heard that voice before?

The girl led the way out of the postoffice, on the top of the steps leading to the street she paused and directed Gerry's attention across the street.

"See that man hiding in the doorway?" queried the girl.

Gerry looked and saw that a man really was skulking there in the darkness.

"He's following me," the girl went on. "He's one of the men you've got to look out for."

Gerry shrugged his shoulders. "Let 'em come," he laughed. "I should worry. This is getting interesting."

Then, after a moment's pause, he went on:

"I've got my car here. I'll take you wherever you say."

"I'm glad of that," responded the girl. "Take me out of the city, on the Brampton road. I'll tell you where when we're well out."

Gerry's car was a speedster. It took him but a few moments to thread his way through the light, early evening traffic and to hit the highway, where he opened up at a law-defying speed. And as he raced through the night he felt strangely, happily exhilarated. He didn't know what the girl was at, but he didn't know what danger he was speeding into. But he did know that he was content and that a warm, delightful feeling of friendship and intimacy was growing between the girl and himself.

"I've known you somewhere," said Gerry softly to the girl. "Where did I meet you? Who are you, anyhow?"

"You're sure you've known me?" queried the girl.

"Positive!" ejaculated Gerry.

"You're right—you have!" the girl responded.

"But who in the world are you?" demanded Gerry again.

"I'll not tell you—it would spoil everything," the girl answered, enigmatically.

And with this Gerry was forced to be content. Content, that is, for the moment, for Gerry was strongly determined to know whether or not the romance he so greatly desired was hiding behind that thick veil.

And later, as they drew up at last before a dark, silent, forbidding house on a side road, Gerry's chance came. There was a strong wind, this wind flurried with the girl's veil and suddenly caught it upward. In the light from his car Gerry caught a glimpse of the girl's face. He gasped. Yes, he knew the girl. But—she was a chambermaid at the place where he roomed!

With this astonishing discovery, which was really dismaying to Gerry, who was strong for associating only with those people who were marked by family or attainments as being the sort of people he wanted as friends, all the savor in the adventure suddenly went from him. He turned morosely toward the car, intending to take the girl with him back to the city and make a quick end of it. No wonder he recognized her handwriting—he'd seen it on a bill which she had prepared for the landlady and then presented to him.

But Gerry's sudden decision didn't get him very far. The girl, sensing the change in his attitude, came close to him and laid her hand on his arm.

"Please go through with it," she whispered. "I'm really in danger. I need your help. And you're the only man of all those in the boarding house I felt would be the right sort to help me. Please go through with it."

Gerry turned back to her. After all, why not? It was adventure, he wanted it and romance was lacking with that matter.

"All right, lead on," said Gerry. The girl hurried resolutely toward the house. Now Gerry saw there was a light in the cellar, visible through tiny cracks at the edges of the window. And now, too, he became conscious of another car approaching at high speed down the road.

"Oh, hurry!" cried the girl in an agonized tone of voice. "I'm afraid Simpkins will get here."

"Simpkins?" queried Gerry. "You don't mean Simpkins, the prohibition inspector?"

Gerry felt the girl's eyes upon him though the veil again hid her face.

"Yes, that's who I mean?" she responded. "But—but, please, oh, please, help me!"

Gerry wondered what sort of mess he was getting into. Apparently the girl must be hand in glove with some law violators if Simpkins was against her. And now he realized that the figure the girl had pointed out from the postoffice across the street was that of Simpkins, whom he had met on several occasions. What was it all about? Was the girl leading him into some law violation?

Again Gerry turned away, determined to throw up the whole undertaking. Then, strangely, as the girl came close to him and again placed her hand on his arm, that warm sense of friendship and intimacy swept over him again. Chambermaid or not, here was a girl who affected him as no other girl ever had. If she wanted him to stick by her, he'd do it, law violation or not. And, strangely, he somehow felt that everything must be all right, after all.

The girl pressed an automatic into his hand.

"Break in and hold them up!" That's all," she said. "Quick, before Simpkins comes!"

That was all. But it was enough! As Gerry smashed through a window into the cellar and faced a ring of rough-looking individuals gathered about a still in a corner of the room he felt it was touch and go, for a moment. Then, oddly enough, one of the men in the ring began quickly clamping handcuffs on the gang.

There was a noise at the window behind Gerry. He heard Simpkins talking to the girl. Then he heard Simpkins tearing down the walk and the sound of his machine starting up.

Then the girl entered the cellar and stood behind him. Her veil was up now and her face gloriously pretty, her eyes shining wonderfully.

"We've won! We've won! In spite of Simpkins' treachery," she cried. "You did splendidly! Jennings," she added, turning to the man who had slipped the handcuffs on the gang.

"You're some fine, dandy detective," said Jennings in reply.

Gerry turned swiftly to the girl, the light of understanding in his eyes.

"You—you're a prohibition inspector," he cried.

"Yes!" breathed the girl. "It was a blind—that chambermaid thing—some of the members of this gang roomed at your place."

"And—and Simpkins has been standing in with this bunch?" went on Gerry.

"Yes," the girl answered. "He tried to double cross me and then threatened to get my life. That's why I wore a veil—so he wouldn't be sure it was me. That's why I had to call you in. Simpkins wouldn't help me round up the gang—he hindered me, and Jennings was busy working on the inside. I couldn't tell you right out what I wanted—you wouldn't have come. I had to be mysterious, appeal to your spirit of adventure and—"

"I've got something important to say to you," exclaimed Gerry, his heart pounding violently as he took her gently by the arm and led her to the steps leading out of the cellar.

But what he said is, as Kipling used to say, another story! (Copyright, 1922, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Unusual Change

So many ingenious schemes I get business are being tried that the idea of allowing us to trade in a last year's straw hat on a new one is at least entitled to consideration. Yesterday Moots pitched a no-hit game, yesterday, and he hasn't been in college quite a year.

Deposits with different branches of co-operative unions, which conduct limit savings bank activities, increased to the equivalent of $3,350,000, representing small savings of co-operative society members.

The central union has started its own producing plants in several places. The report states that members of the co-operative societies are enabled to purchase practically all necessities at the lowest prices obtainable, as well as sell their products on most favorable terms through their own joint organizations.

The greatest number of co-operative enterprises, the report shows, are to be found in the big industrial centers where the bulk of membership is drawn from the ranks of workmen and their families.

DES MOINES, Iowa.—By The Associated Press.—Interest in the Iowa primaries Monday centered largely in the six covered race for the republican nomination for United States senator to complete the unexpired term of W. S. Kenyon now a federal judge.

The six candidates seeking the nomination today are: Col. S. W. Brookhart, Charles E. Pickett, B. E. Sweet, C. L. Thorne, Leslie E. Francis and Col. C. M. Stanley.

Candidates for all state offices as well as candidates for congress from the eleven districts were to be nominated.

For several minutes the ailing lady had talked steadily, while the doctor stood by, listening carefully.

Then at last the latter looked at his watch with visible impatience, but managed to say politely:

"Pardon me, madame, but my time is not my own. I have about a dozen patients waiting to see me. You have given me all your symptoms in full detail, and, perhaps you will—er—kindly—"

He hesitated, but the patient's husband came to the rescue.

CO-OP SOCIETIES IN SWEDEN SHOW GOOD PROGRESS

1921 Was Banner Year for Co-operative Enterprises Despite General Depression

STOCKHOLM.—Swedish co-operative societies flourished last year as they have never done within the history of the Co-operative Union of Sweden which was founded in 1899, says the annual report of that organization just issued.

In the same period Swedish business, commerce and industry suffered heavy losses or at the best showed small profits. Whether the co-operatives succeeded in spite of the world-wide depression or because of it is hard to say, but the fact remains that the dismal year of 1921 was for them a banner year.

Sweden at present has about 1,000 co-operative stores, besides many varieties of other ventures such as co-operative dwelling and building associations, purchasing societies, large number of co-operative dairies, farmers' societies, seventy egg-selling organizations, cattle breeding societies and fruit and vegetable growers' co-operatives.

Last year's report shows that a net surplus of about $125,000 has been made by these non-profit making societies, while the cash on hand has increased from $1,250,000 to $1,850,000.

STATE POCKET-BOOK FATTEST IN HISTORY REPORTS TREASURER

Wisconsin Now Has Sixteen and a Half Million in the Treasury

HALF OF BALANCE TO BE USED
ON HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION

State Has Funds Enough to Run
Until Legislature Meets

MADISON, Wis.—State Treasurer Henry Johnson has $16,542,683 in the treasury, the largest amount ever held in the state funds. There is $12,729,961 in the Wisconsin general fund, the most money ever on hand to meet the running expenses of the state government.

Receipts during May totaled $8,415,000, nearly $4,000,000 of which was from railroad taxes, and the remainder from automobile license fees, teachers' retirement fund, educational bonus fund and telephone and telegraph company taxes.

The income sur-tax imposed by the 1921 legislature to provide funds for operating the teachers' retirement system, brought $1,314,561 to the treasury. Mr. Johnson's report today shows. During May there was expended from this fund $917,005, leaving $722,156 in the balance on June 1, compared with $324,599 on May 1. Expenditures for soldier bonus are seen to be rapidly dwindling with the payment for the past 30 days of but $27,110 to former service men. A balance of $791,510 is available for construction of the Wisconsin general hospital from this fund, when approved by Governor J. J. Blaine. Receipts during May from taxes, previously uncollected, amounted to $129,315.

The soldiers' educational bonus fund has $1,336,550 in its reserve at the present time. Receipts during May amounted to $1,157,275 and expenditures to $95,987.

Nearly $8,000,000 of the $16,542,683 in the treasury is to be used for highway construction and maintenance. Of this amount $4,000,000 comes from automobile license fees and must be held in the treasury for one year before being expended on maintenance.

For the last time this year the general property tax of $1,700,000 was levied and collected by the state and highway construction. In addition nearly $2,000,000 is held by the highway commission from unexpected funds.

Disbursements from the funds in the state treasury after this month will largely exceed receipts. Highway expenditures will commence to drain the general fund at the rate of $2,000,000 a month after July.

Treasurer Johnson believes that the available funds assure the operation of all governmental departments until the next legislature, without any financial embarrassment.

SEEK TO PREVENT RUSSIAN PEASANTS FROM EATING SEED

Shipments of Grain for Planting Accompanied by Cars of Food Supplies

MOSCOW.—Every four car loads of seed grain, chiefly wheat, sent to the famine districts of Russia, are accompanied by a car load of corn or other food to prevent the eating of the seeds by the hungry peasants.

In an interview published here just prior to his departure for the Genoa conference Leonid Krassin, commissar for foreign trade, said the famine districts were supplied with seed grain not only from the United States but also from the interior provinces of Russia, additional seeds being purchased in Poland, Sweden, the Baltic states, Rumania and Bulgaria.

According to Krassin the total amount of seed grain supplied direct by the commissariat for foreign trade, the American relief administration and the organization headed by Fritz Nansen is 12,418,000 pounds (36 pounds each) to be distributed as follows: Central Russia, 10,400,000 pounds; southeastern Russia, 1,034,000 pounds; the Ukraine, 881,000.

Just how much of the seeds will reach destinations in time for the spring planting will severely be known before some time in May. Freezing of the Baltic ports caused three weeks' delay, Krassin said, and in February and March the Russian railways were congested at various points. On some lines he said "many thousands of cars" were held up, while the return of empty cars to the Baltic sea shipping points fell to the minimum.

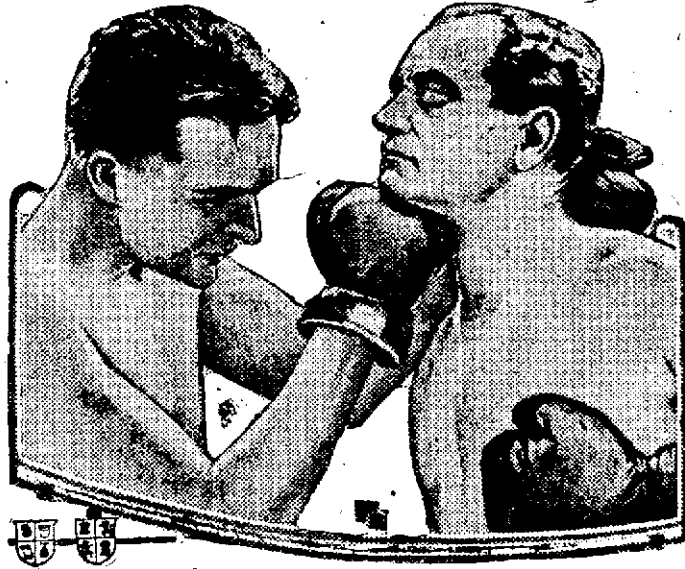

Recent reports from various railway centers showed little, if any, improvement in Russia's transportation, and there has been much speculation among the railway managers and experts as to how much of the seed grain would arrive in time for the spring planting.

Some Car
"How do you like your new car?" asked the Lizzie driver.

"Great," replied the Big Six driver. "It runs so smoothly you can't feel it. Not a bit of noise, you can't hear it. Perfectly tight, you can't smell a thing. And speed, why it whizzes. You ought to see it."

"Must be some car, ventured the Lizzie driver. "Can't feel it, can't smell it, can't hear it, can't see it. How do you know it is there?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

NO INTERNAL WAR TO MAR 1922 MEET OF AMERICAN LABOR

No Faction Will Try to Oust Old
Leaders at Cincinnati
this Month

WASHINGTON.—"Let's save all our fighting for our enemies." That might be taken as a slogan for American Federation of Labor leaders at their annual convention in Cincinnati, June 12 to 24.

For the first time in many years, the convention will get together without an internal schism aimed at forcing a change in the organization's leadership.

Active anti-labor propaganda and organization, on the part of capitalist and employer groups, have driven the rival labor factions together, and this year no internal fight will be permitted to weaken the force of the Federation's pronouncements and decisions.

Convention Aims
Chief among the subjects discussed will be the activity of Chambers of Commerce in certain cities which are alleged to have engaged actively in developing hostility to organized labor. A report will be submitted as to methods employed and as to financial interests identified with these chambers, which are said to have been exerting pressure, through banking channels, to influence conditions of labor and employment particularly in the building industry.

Child Labor
Closely allied with this anti-labor question will be that of child labor to which a special session of the convention will be devoted. Senator Robert La Follette of Wisconsin in the Senate for many years, will address the convention on this subject.

Labor Injunctions
Labor injunctions and the attitude of the courts toward labor, as compared to their attitude toward capital, will be dissected.

The labor situation as a result of developments in the coal and textile strikes will be carefully analyzed. Closely allied with this study will be consideration of a report to be made by a special committee which has been investigating and studying various theories of wage fixing in an effort to arrive at a scientific method of basing wages. The cost of living basis for wage fixing is opposed.

Soldiers' Bonus
Support for a bonus for the discharged soldiers probably will be voted, and Congress asked to hasten enactment of a bonus law.

Russian Relations
Although efforts are being made to keep discussion of our Russian relationship out of the convention, it is by no means unlikely that it will be injected. If it is, a warm debate is certain, but with an endorsement of this country's refusal to recognize the soviet government apparently assured.

National Politics
No title of the interest in the convention will center around the national political situation. Labor leaders opposed to the policy of the present administration and Congress, believing their acts are directly designed to aid capital and big business as against the welfare of the individual, declare they "see signs of much hopefulness."

Irish Situation
One old friend, present in the A. F. of L. discussions for many years, will be absent. That is the Irish question. No convention has been complete within the past decade without an attempt to stir up factionalism over Ireland's fight for freedom. Now that it is an all-Irish scrap, the convention will keep hands off, in the same way that any internal discussions within the Federation will be taboo.

EIGHTY DROWN AS STEAMER SINKS IN ARGENTINE RIVER

Vessel Takes Fire and Goes Down Following Explosion

BUENOS AIRES.—Eighty persons are believed to have perished in the sinking Sunday of the steamer Villa Francia on the Parana river, near Posadas. At that point the river forms the boundary between Argentina and Paraguay.

The vessel carried thirty cabin passengers, seventy second-class passengers and a general cargo. One survivor said the sleeping passengers were awakened at 1:40 a. m. by cries of alarm and rushed on deck to find the vessel enveloped in flames. A few seconds later there was a heavy explosion which caused the boat to fill and sink rapidly. Some of the uninjured survivors swam ashore. An unconfirmed report said that the only cabin passengers saved were the members of a family of North Americans and three others.

COMPLAINT ISSUED AGAINST BETHLEHEM FOR UNFAIR METHODS

WASHINGTON.—The federal trade commission has issued a formal complaint against the Bethlehem Steel corporation and the Lackawanna Steel company, charging they can be and are using unfair methods of competition. The complaint grows out of the merger recently effected by the two companies. The commission made this announcement Monday in a report to the senate in response to the recently adopted resolution of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin directing inquiry into the merger by the commission and the department of justice.

When He Smiled
A young man who had just become engaged had an amazingly large mouth which, when he smiled, seemed to spread out over his whole face. At the urging of his newly betrothed sweetheart he went to speak to her father at once. "I—I have come, Mr. Barrett," he said, beginning to smile at once with the utmost gentility in order to cover up his embarrassment. "I—to ask for your daughter's hand. I—"

"Excuse me," the father mildly interrupted, "but will you kindly close your mouth for a moment until I can see who you are?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

CLAIM RESTORATION OF PEACE IN CHINA RESTS WITH DR. SUN

Look to Southern Leader to Withdraw in Order to Unite Warring Factions

REFUSAL WILL BRING ARMED WARFARE BY GENERAL WU

Li Yuan Hung Ready to Act as Leader of United China

PEKING.—By The Associated Press.—Sun Yat Sen, first president of the Chinese republic, leader of the Canton, or southern, government, has an undoubted claim to be the one man whose withdrawal from the scene would bring peace in China, or may cause that country to a continuance of the civil strife which has torn it, for five years or more.

Li Yuan Hung, ousted by the military dictatorship in 1917, announced Sunday that he was ready to resume office provided he did so as the leader of a united China. This involves Dr. Sun's resignation as leader of a faction engaged in strife with the Peking government headed until recently by Hsu Shih Chang.

A direct refusal, it is believed, would cause General Wu Pei Fu to take steps to prevent his recent promise and use force against Dr. Sun. As Wu is at the head of the most powerful body of troops in China and Dr. Sun is far from lacking followers, serious consequences might result.

Foreigners Warned to Leave

TIEN TSIN.—By The Associated Press.—All foreigners have been warned to leave Shanhai-kuan, Chihli, on the Manchurian border along the Gulf of Pootung, because serious fighting is expected between the advancing army of Gen. Wu Pei Fu's army, the Manchurian troops of Chang Tsiang, the Manchurian war lord. The Chihli advance guard at noon Sunday had reached Liao-hoing, the next station from Pootung. General Chang's troops were retreating toward Shanhai-kuan. The Chihli commander advised that all foreigners be removed from that city within 24 hours.

NO NEW PARTIES TO BE ALLOWED IN RUSSIA FOR YEARS

Communist Party Must Keep Outsiders Out Declares Head of Third Internationale

MOSCOW.—No new political parties can be legalized in Russia for a number of years and the Communist party must continue to keep its ranks closed except to those strictly sympathetic with the dictatorship of the proletariat, G. E. Zinovieff told the last session of the All-Russian Communist Party Congress.

Zinovieff is head of the Third Internationale, president of the Petrograd Provincial Soviet, one of Premier Lenin's closest friends and the author of Lenin's biography. He is a fiery, revolutionary crusader and in Soviet regime virtually has been dictator of Petrograd.

"Our party has the monopoly of legality," he said. "The danger of people are getting into the party who would go into the petty bourgeoisie parties if such existed."

"They are not coming into the party with bad intentions, and are honest enough but being in bourgeois views. They are an active part of the population who like to participate in the economic and political life of the country. We shall surely be the monopolists of the legality of any party in this country for a number of years to come."

M. Zinovieff said it would be difficult to clear out this element of the party but as the labor class must "do it" the bourgeoisie, the party's difficulties, no matter how great, in answering Russia, should not permit of any compromise that would lead to the restoration of the Menshevik or other bourgeois.

More serious attention must also be paid to the press. M. Zinovieff declared, as the bourgeoisie writers are trying to get an independent press and even journalists registered as employees of the newspapers now permitted to operate, all government controlled papers must be of the old intelligentsia class.

WIFE SENDS AVIATOR ON FLIGHT AROUND WORLD

(By NEA Service.)
LONDON.—A woman's self sacrifice has made possible an attempt to make the first airplane flight around the world.

The death of Sir Ross Smith on the eve of his projected round-the-world flight took away all the nerve of his brother, Sir Keith Smith, who was to have been his companion. British air officials, fearing America might snatch the honor, called for volunteers.

Major W. T. Blake, a noted flier and newspaperman, was appealed to as the man best fitted to undertake the task.

"I have a family," said Blake. "Ask my wife. If she agrees, I'll go."

Mrs. Blake didn't hesitate. "Go!" she said. "It is for the glory of Britain. Britain before family!"

Funds Subscribed
Private funds have been subscribed for four planes and Captain Norman MacMillan, who once flew to Morocco with Blake, will use on the round-the-world flight. A flying boat was planned at first, but Blake decided he couldn't afford to wait until it could be built.

"To wait would play into the hands of the Yanks," he said. "I want to gain this honor for Britain."

Blake and MacMillan will leave London in a huge DeHaviland 9 machine, a giant ship equipped with a 250-horsepower Siddeley-Puma engine. In it they will reach Calcutta, covering 7,000 miles in the first stage of the flight, via Paris, Rome, Athens, Crete, Alexandria, Baghdad, Hazra, Karachi and Delhi.

In Calcutta a second machine, a Fairey 3, will be waiting, the parts having been sent there to be assembled. The second leg will be via Rangoon, Bangkok, Saigon, along the Chinese coast to Japan, Yokohama, then to Petropavlovsk, and via the Aleutian Islands and the Alaskan coast to Vancouver.

Will Cross U. S.
A third machine, another DeHaviland 9, will be waiting for the trip across Canada, to Chicago, New York, and thence to New Foundland, where the fourth machine, an "F" 3 flying boat, will be picked up. The journey then will be across Greenland to Iceland, to the Faroe Islands and finally to Scotland, ending up at Aberdeen. The longest sea flight will be from the Faroe Islands to Scotland, about 850 miles.

SEeks BEST WOMAN WORKER
The "beauty contest" is gone one better by the Intrastate, a labor paper of Rio de Janeiro, which has started a contest to ascertain the best "manual or intellectual laborer of Brazil."

Simultaneous with the opening of a beauty contest by another journal of Rio, the Intrastate announced it would give a valuable prize to a woman or girl securing the largest number of votes for being the most skilled woman in any line of work.

The lists published by the Intrastate of the contestants and their standing include the names of stenographers, actresses, seamstresses, women in all branches of government work, laundry workers, telephone operators, shop girls and numerous others.

Contrary to expectations actresses do not head the list of contestants, the top place being occupied by Senhorinha Bailey, a seamstress, who has a total of more than 1,000 votes to her credit, says the New York Sun.

"Thinking that he was being funny, and not wishing to be outdone, I responded: "Oh, are you? Well, I am Cinderella," only to find later that he had given me his real name.—Exchange.

THE FLOWERING TOBACCOS

Three varieties of flowering tobacco furnish one of the most easily grown subjects for a striking and picturesque planting either in the annual border, among shrubbery or in pots by themselves. Most striking of the group is Nicotiana glauca, which grows five feet high, with large, ornamental velvety leaves and great clusters of white starry flowers on long tubes which surround the foliage. Of less robust growth, but good for from two to three feet, according to location, are the sweet-scented Nicotiana glauca and the hybrid Nicotiana glauca and Nicotiana glauca. The last two come in a variety of colors ranging through yellow, white, pink, red, blue, and purple. Nicotiana glauca is an evening bloomer opening its flowers late in the afternoon.

WHAT THE CURATE THOUGHT
The curate entered the railway carriage, in which were seated a gang of navvies. He noted the language of the latter was particularly complimentary and free.

"Thinking to ease matters, one of the navvies turned to the curate and said: "Look here, curate, you'll have to excuse us chap. We're a rough and ready crowd, and call a spade a spade."

"Most extraordinary," replied the curate, "judging by the run of conversation you'd call anything but that."—London Opinion.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT CONTROLLED BY MEN WITH WAR RECORDS

Over Half of Deputies Served as Officers in the French Army

PARIS.—The debates in the Chamber of Deputies on the military service bill disclosed the fact that 350 of the 605 members of that body served as officers in the French army. Most of them have scarcely reached middle life and few were active in politics prior to 1914.

Observers predict that French politics for the next generation will be in the control of men with war records, in very much the same manner as the American congress was after the Civil war.

General Viscount de Castelnau is the most notable soldier in parliament but his influence is scarcely greater than that of Lieutenant Colonel Jean Estey, who was Joffre's chief of staff on his visit to Washington in April, 1917.

Viscount de Castelnau is better known as a general than as a deputy. He Castelnau was on the list of those whom Premier Clemenceau thought were entitled to be marshals of France. Clemenceau, it is said, finally, with great reluctance, to leave de Castelnau a general because he had appointed one Catholle, Koch, to be a marshal and he did not like to name a second Catholle, de Castelnau. The general is a devout churchman.

Besides Castelnau, there are 40 others in this republican chamber holding titles of nobility.

The Marquis de Denon, another deputy, is a manufacturer of automobiles. Baron Maurice de Rothschild is well known as an owner of race horses.

Two dukes in the house are Duc d'Angoulême Pasquier, whose title goes back to 1750 and the Duc de Dalmatie, a descendant through the female line from Napoleon's marshal, Soult.

Another Napoleonic name is recalled by Deputy Prince Joachim de Murat. Baron Albert Aubigny has specialized in aeronautics.

There are more than 3,500 persons in the French States who are more than 100 years old.

KNOWLEDGE USEFUL IF PUT TO WORK DECLARES VINTER

Rev. Robert D. Vinter Talks on Value of Education at Normal School

POWER OF CHRISTIAN CHURCH AND RELATION OF VOCATION

Baccalaureate Service of Local School Sunday Afternoon

"If there is one thing more useless in this world than knowledge without the power to put it to work, it is power without the knowledge of how to use it," said the Rev. Robert D. Vinter in the course of his sermon at the baccalaureate services of the Normal school held in the Normal school auditorium Sunday afternoon. The Rev. Vinter delivered an excellent talk to the graduating classes and their friends, having as his subject, "Vocation" as related to the power of the Christian church.

Rev. Vinter said in part: "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you."

"This day is being celebrated as a great festival day by hundreds of millions of Christians the world over. It was on this day—Pentecost or White Sunday, it is called—that the Holy Spirit came down upon the Church, even as our Lord had promised.

"At the time of His Ascension, when our Lord was about to return to heaven, He bade His little band of disciples go back to Jerusalem and wait there until 'ye be imbued with power from on high.'"

"And now, ten days after his departure, the Jewish Feast of Weeks is at hand. The Holy City is thronged with those who have come from all parts of the world to take part in the solemnities. The little group of disciples is gathered in a house which, it would seem, had been chosen as their rendezvous, when 'there came from heaven a sound like that of the rushing of a mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them tongues, parting asunder, like as of fire, and sat upon each of them.' Then St. Luke goes on in a great outburst of joy: 'They were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.'"

"It was the birth of the church, the coming to life of its very soul and life. It was the beginning of a new era in the history of the world. It was the releasing in humanity of the greatest power ever known, the greatest power at work in the world today."

"There are many whose faith stumbles at this tale of a rushing wind, of darting flames, of the mysterious gift which enabled these men to speak in languages other than their own. They would wave these things aside as parables too strongly of the miraculous."

Promised Power

"This afternoon I am going to ask you first to think of the promise of power from on high that our Lord gave to His disciples, the manner and extent to which it has been fulfilled; and then, in the second place, of a bearing that promise might have on your lives and mine."

"In a certain sense, such an endowment of power was practically a necessity."

"Our Lord had come into the world to do certain work; to lay the foundation upon which there might be built up a new humanity; to recreate the human family; to lift man living on to a new level."

"To accomplish this, He had to give them both the knowledge of how to live, and the moral and spiritual power which would enable them to live according to that knowledge. Both are necessary. If there is one thing more useless in the world than knowledge without the power to put it to work, so to speak, it is power without the knowledge of how to use it."

"As our Lord very well knew, He could make only a beginning of this gigantic task of recreating humanity. Therefore He must make provision for the carrying on of His work after His departure."

"He had the choice of two methods; that of the book and that of the man. He chose the latter. A very superficial acquaintance with any religion based upon a book shows that He was very wise in dismissing the method of the book."

"He therefore gathered together a small group of men, welded them into a society of fellowship, trained them to take His place as far as they were able, and then, in the most solemn manner, passed on to them His own God-given commission: 'As the Father hath sent Me, so send I you.'"

Christian Religion

"There are those who think of the Christian religion as a pretty ornament to life, gliding over the very ugly sores of a very ugly world. There are those who think of it as a nice thing for women and children. There are some who see in it a positively injurious influence. There are some who feel that it has no important relation to the daily life of humanity. And there are those, in these latter days who solemnly assure us that it is a spent force; and with long faces talk of the 'failure' of Christianity."

"In passing, I would like to warn you not to take too seriously all you hear and read about the 'failure' of Christianity, and the impending 'collapse' of the church. It is all rot."

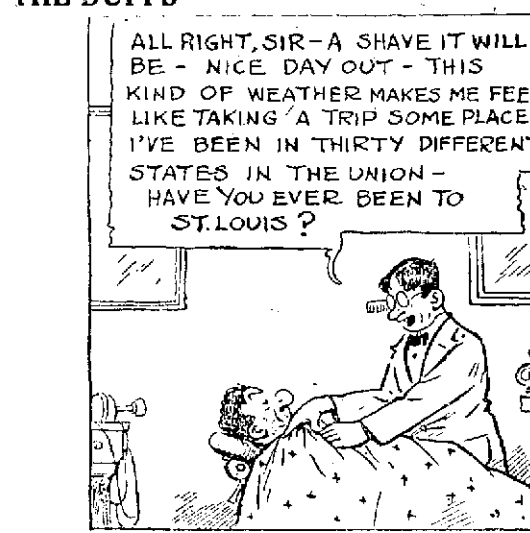

"In this matter as in others, the study of history is illuminating. It shows that in every age there has been this same talk about 'failure' and 'collapse.' Well, it may be so, but like Browning's martyrs we can at least take some pleasure in the fact."

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS HIT BY WATSON FOR TARIFF STATEMENTS

Indiana Senator Scores British and Italian Ambassadors in Particular

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The British and Italian ambassadors and accredited representatives of other foreign nations were assailed Monday in the senate by Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, in connection with speeches and statements made by them relating to American tariff and trade.

Senator Watson asserted that Sir Auckland Geddes in his address in California last March in which he was quoted as urging use of British ships for carrying American commerce as one means of aiding trade between the United States and Great Britain, "had gone entirely outside the bounds of propriety."

The Indiana senator, one of the administration leaders in the senate charged that there was a foreign propaganda against the pending tariff bill and declared that he denied the right of the representatives of any foreign government to come to this country "and instruct us with reference to the policy of our government."

Senator Watson read from a statement credited to Senator Rorer, the Italian ambassador, to the effect that if the United States increased its tariff on lemons and olives, Italy would have to increase its tariff on American agricultural products. He also cited speeches by British and French consuls general at a New York meeting of consuls of 27 nations in which "as little interference as possible" with foreign trade was advocated. At the same time, he said, Great Britain and France were increasing their tariffs.

"Free trade," said Senator Watson, "showed it goes hand in hand with internationalism, hand in hand with the league of nations."

"If Ambassador Harvey got up in London and said Great Britain would have to pass a tariff or we would trade with them, what would happen?" asked Senator Watson. "It would not last long."

The policy of a protective tariff is an American policy, Senator Watson asserted, and that a chance in it could be dictated only by "the sovereign voice of the American people."

CHARGE OF BIGAMY AGAINST VALENTINO DISMISSED MONDAY

Evidence Not Sufficient to Justify Trial is Ruling of Justice After Hearing

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Rodolph Valentino, screen actor, whose principal roles have been of love heroes, was liberated of a charge of bigamy here Monday, when the felony complaint was dismissed after a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Hanby. The justice ruled there was insufficient evidence presented to support the complaint.

The dismissal of the case followed three days of testimony concerning the marriage in Mexico, Mexico, Mar. 13, between Valentino and Wilfred De Wolf-Shaughnessy-Hudnut, professionally known as Natcha Rambova, and their honeymoon in Palm Springs, Calif., a desert oasis south of here.

The bigamy charge was filed against Valentino by the district attorney here because the Mexican marriage occurred before a final decree of divorce was granted Valentino from Jean Acker, screen actress, in whose case he was awarded an interlocutory decree last January.

Justice Hanby in announcing decision to dismiss the complaint said that while the charge of bigamy was a serious one that had an important bearing on the social fabric, but that evidence of cohabitation was not sufficiently shown to warrant a verdict of guilty from a jury, and in view of this he did not think that the county should be put to the best expense of a trial.

The dismissal of the complaint by Justice Hanby is not necessarily final, attorneys said, as the law provides that even after a hearing in justice court, the prosecutor may, if he elects, go before the indictment, where the district attorney would present this matter further was unknown.

JOE HAHN, MEDINGER ARE PUT ON PAROLE ON LA CROSSE FARMS

Saloonmen Convicted of Having Liquor in Possession to Work Out Sentences

Joe Hahn and Ben Medinger, saloonkeepers, sentenced by Judge Fowler to five months and 90 days respectively in the county jail for having alcohol and moonshine in their possession, have been paroled to two farmers. They will work out their sentences on the farms, their wages to go to their families. They are not to leave the farms until the expiration of their sentences.

Attorney E. E. Whitrow took their cases up with Judge Fowler and the sheriff and the farm work was procured for them. Hahn will go to the farm of William Pierce, Green's Cove, about two and a half miles northwest of Onalaska, and Medinger will go to Al Miller's farm near Holmes.

HEADQUARTERS MEN OF 120TH F. A. ON AN OVERNIGHT HIKE

Twenty-six officers and men of Headquarters battery, 120th Field Artillery, W. N. G., hiked from the armory to Bloomer's mill Saturday evening, camped for the night, had field practice all day Sunday and marched back to town Sunday evening.

The outfit left the armory at 5 p. m. Reaching the camping grounds, the field kitchen was set up, pup tents pitched and the soldiers then enjoyed a lunch. At 10 p. m. it was "lights out."

At 5 a. m. Sunday, the field kitchen was smoking and the artillerymen were piling out of their tents for the day's work. Considerable practice was given in laying wire connections with imaginary gun positions.

Two "K. P.'s" were obtained for Sunday work after the usual manner. Two cookies didn't take the order for lights out seriously but decided it was the signal to go visiting among the various pup tents. Quite naturally, they ran afoul of the guard. Sunday morning they were elected to kitchen police duty.

Use Machine Guns
Republicans stationed at vantage points with machine guns held out, frequently firing at the troops, who replied with a Lewis gun.

It is officially stated that but one member of the crown forces was killed. Seven republicans are known to have been killed, and 11 were made prisoners, including the commandant.

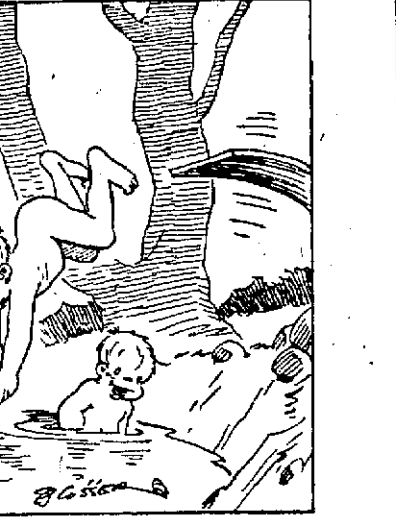

It is understood that Holloway, ten miles southwest of Pettigoe, still being held by the republicans but Magheranema castle has been evacuated. There is considerable interest here regarding the fate of the Rebeck fort, the holding of which by the republicans practically renders the barracks untenable.

The military has taken strong positions on the neighboring hills to prevent a surprise attack, while "B" special constables are on duty on all Fernmanagh roads leading to Pettigoe.

Many Events Claim Attention of Students During Last Week of School

The first half of this week is to be a busy one for the members of the graduating classes and other students at the normal school. The final rush of events before the commencement exercises begins tonight with the presentation of the senior class play, the well known George M. Cohan Broadway success, "A Prince There Was," in the normal school auditorium. Every indication points toward a great success for the play. An especially strong cast has been chosen for its presentation, and the work of coaching and directing has been in charge of a professional dramatic coach. A feature of the play is the work of little Goldline Leveille of Winona, the part of Comfort, the wait. The talented young actress has appeared in this role before.

Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 the annual class day exercises will be held in the auditorium of the school. A very interesting program has been arranged by the committee in charge. In the evening at 8 o'clock the exhibition and demonstration of the members of the physical education department will be held in the large gymnasium. Tickets for the exhibition may be secured by calling at the normal school office.

Wednesday morning, at 9:30, in the auditorium of the school will be held the commencement exercises. Rev. C. C. Rowland, pastor of the First Congregational church, will deliver the principal address. His subject will be "Sacred Callings—How Shall We Answer Them?" A class of about 200 will receive their diplomas at this time.

SHOTTEN BATTERED BY LOCAL SLUGGERS FOR THIRTEEN HITS

Gunderson Master at all Times Allowing But Four Scattered Blows

LOCALS CLOUT THIRTEEN SAFETIES OFF SHOTTEN

Fitzke, Franzini and C. Weigert Local Slugging Demons

THE Montagues had an easy time getting back at Cashton to even up the games here Sunday afternoon, and the visitors were soundly trounced to shreds and his teammates at Cope and park, 6 to 1.

Keeping the four lonely blows, with which the visitors were let down, scattered evenly throughout the innings, Gunderson capably held the Cashton sluggers within safe checks at all times. The lone rally of the visitors was the result of a walk after two were away and a triple by Qualley. The young normal school had with all the necessary dope to squelch an even sign of the opposing nine, while his teammates were able to clout 13 safeties off Shotten.

Three Hitting Stars

Fitzke, Franzini and Charley Weigert were the slugging demons of the team yesterday, each connecting for one out of four trips. Franzini tied in a triple with his three which counted a score. Safford and Moore crossed themselves to the extra base, hitting staff by clouting the peller for three bases, while Johnny Weigert also figured in one for two sacks.

Cashton scored their only run in the sixth inning after two men were out. "Bugs" Williams waited for a walk and Qualley brought him in with his second three base drive at Cope and park which he tried to stretch into a homer.

Start in Third

The locals started the fireworks in the third when two triples and two singles netted four tallies. Fitzke took a walk and was sacrificed to second. Franzini tripled to left, scoring Fitzke. Weigert singled, scoring Franzini, while Safford sent a triple to left, bringing Weigert to the plate. Moore went out at first, Shotten to Brodie, and Safford scored on Johnny Weigert's single. Gunderson ended the inning by going out at first.

The locals followed up the good work with one each in the fourth and fifth. In the fourth, Gunderson struck out and Fitzke singled. He was sacrificed by Hallie and scored on another of Franzini's singles. Moore started the hostilities in the fifth with a single, scoring when Johnny sent a fly ground ball through Qualley's legs.

ILLINOIS HAS LITTLE DIFFICULTY IN ROMPING OFF WITH FIRST HONORS IN TRACK AND FIELD MEET SATURDAY

True to form, Illinois had no difficulty whatever in romping away with honors in the conference track and field meet held at Iowa on Saturday.

The Suckers scored more than twice as many points as their nearest opponent, Iowa.

The showing of Wisconsin was not as strong as had been anticipated and the Badgers were forced into sixth place, being defeated by Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Notre Dame and Ames, Michigan, Ohio State, Chicago and Purdue finished behind Wisconsin.

Krollin was the only Wisconsin man to take a first place. He took first in the high hurdles. Guy Sundt took two seconds in the broad jump and shot put.

Four conference records were broken in the meet and one tied.

George Bresnahan, coach of the Iowa squad, was in charge of the cross country team before leaving for Iowa where he has been accomplishing wonders with the Iowa track and field men. He is a Wisconsin man.

The team scores in the meet follow: Illinois, 30; Iowa, 24; Minnesota, 23; Notre Dame, 22; Ames, 22; Wisconsin, 21; 16-35; Michigan, 20; Ohio State, 19; Chicago, 9; Purdue, 6.

BLAIR SILENCES WINNING STREAK OF NELSON CLUB

Locals Lose First Game of Season to Dumont and Gang Sunday, 9 to 3

The formidable Blair baseball aggregation silenced the winning streak of the Nelson club on the former's diamond Sunday afternoon, 9 to 3. It was the Nelsons' first defeat of the season after winning four straight and also it was the first defeat for Schultz, who has won seven games this year.

The Nelsons were able to clout five hits off "Lefty" Dumont, who struck out 14 men during the game, while every batsman on the Blair club with the exception of Toranson and Benrud, contributed to the ruination of the locals with hits yesterday. Glassbrenner figured as the strongest hitter, picking out two two-base hits and as many singles in five times up. The locals scored one each in the first, fourth and sixth innings.

GAS CASE TRIED IN THE CIRCUIT COURT AT MADISON

City Attorney Swennes Representing City in Action Called for Trial Today

City Attorney Oscar J. Swennes is in Madison today to represent the city of La Crosse in the trial of the gas case in the circuit court of Dane county.

This is the action in which the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company appealed to the circuit court of Dane county from the decision of the Railroad Commission reducing the gas rate. In this case 20 cents per thousand feet. In this case the utility attacks the constitutional validity of the rate making section of the railroad commission act.

GLOOM CHASERS

More Coal Mined

Soft coal production is gradually increasing, now is close to 4,500,000 tons a week, or about 60 per cent as big as a year ago. Plenty of coal to bad by buyers, but mostly the expensive grades.

Some miners reason like this: "We might as well be idle several more months and then have steady work to build up coal reserves to normal, as drag along steadily at a few days a week. In the long run, just so much coal has to be mined."

Many striking anthracite miners are vacationing in the "Old Country."

Steel Mills Busy

Steel industry continues turning out three times as much tonnage as last July, when production hit bottom and started climbing. The general industry is running 70 per cent capacity. Iron mining operations are increasing in Lake Superior district. Average selling price of leading steel products has advanced $2.30 a ton since March 1. The mills claim this is largely due to necessity of using high-priced coal instead of Connelville supply, shut off by strike. Steel exports mounting. The big buying has shifted from Japan to South American.

Wheat Exports Slump

Wheat exports are fluctuating from a half to two-thirds less than a year ago, though averaging about the same as corresponding time of 1920.

Corn exports averaging nearly a third more than a year ago.

Wall Street

About $1,500,000,000 now is tied up in Wall street brokers' loans. It's about the same amount as in October, 1919, when speculation was nearing its height.

Public utilities, so far this year, have sold about $210,000,000 of bonds and notes.

Money's Travels

The country's total bank clearings now are, roughly, a sixth bigger than a year ago, and averaging higher than during corresponding weeks of the 1919 boom.

Big Cotton Exports

Exports of cotton, in week ended May 12, totaled 111,283 bales, against 63,706 bales in corresponding week a year ago and 101,825 two years ago.

Total exports for the season that began last August 1 passed the 5,000,000-bales mark.

LONDON POLICE

London, England, probably has the largest and the most efficient police force in the world. The metropolitan police force has charge of an area beside the River Thames composed of twenty-one land divisions and comprising an area of 683 square miles. A superintendent is over each division. In 1916, the force had a strength of 22,323—composed of thirty-six superintendents, 650 inspectors, 2,995 sergeants and 18,642 constables. The criminal investigation department, having a central body at New Scotland Yard, and branches in each division, was organized in 1878. A branch of this department is the convict supervision office, founded in 1880. The City of London police had a force of 1,161 in 1916, 1,015 being constables.—West Salem Nonpareil Journal.

NOT ANTICIPATING

A banker told at the Bankers' club in New York an anecdote about Paul D. Cravath, the club's president.

"Cravath," he said, "is as witty as he is kind. When I was laid with the 'flu' last winter he called on me one afternoon, bringing a huge basket of magnificent grapes."

"Are they white grapes?" I said, for in my recumbent position, I couldn't see them very well.

"Cravath answered in the deepest and most solemn tones:

"In serious cases I never bring black!"—Los Angeles Times.

NEW YORK.—A new world record of 99 hits out of a possible 100 at double targets has been recognized officially by the American Trap Shooting association. It was announced Monday. The mark is held jointly by E. F. Woodward, Houston, Texas, and Frank Hughes, Moberge, S. D., and was made by both gunners at the Mississippi state championship tournament. The former doubles record was 96 out of 100.

"THE WORLD'S CHAMPION" AT THE RIVOLI

A champion star in a knockout picture was the attraction at the Rivoli theater last night. Adapted from the play by Thomas Loudon and A. J. Thomas, this promises to be one of the best pictures in which Wallace Reid has starred. The story concerns the son of a British commoner, who falls in love with a lady of the nobility, is rebuffed by his father, goes to America and in seven years becomes the middleweight champion of the world. He returns to England, thrashes a former rival and then is accepted by the girl after he confides to her that he is now an attorney-at-law, having taken up law after retiring from the fight game, the undefeated champion. The characters are played in a satirical vein and the comedy is rich and highly entertaining. Lois Wilson is leading woman.

"SMILIN' THROUGH" WEDNESDAY

Special interest is attached to the members of Norma Talmadge's cast of players for her latest starring vehicle, "Smilin' Through," coming to the Rivoli Wednesday.

All the players with the exception of Glen Hunter and Miriam Batiste have seen in former Talmadge productions. Mr. Hunter is comparatively a newcomer to the screen, having been recruited from the "legitimate" only a year ago, but he has made gigantic strides in so short a time. He attracted the attention of Dorothy Gish when he was playing the part of the boy in Booth Tarkington's play "Clarence," and Miss Gish engaged him to play opposite her in "Old Joe." On completion of that picture he supported Constance Binney in "The Case of Becky."

RIVIERA TODAY AND TOMORROW

Morvich may be a whale of a horse, but don't forget to give Alert the once over in "Queen o' the Turf," at the Riviera theater tonight.

Remember Man o' War? Remember Billy Kelly at Pimlico? Well, Alert's on the same fine lines—the same stout heart. Watch him go!

Roamer was a small chunky animal and got mighty speed out of his legs. Alert is built on more generous lines and he steps like a chain of lightning in "Queen o' the Turf." It will lift you into a front seat in a towering grandstand and show you the greatest horse race you've ever seen. All you've got to do is buy a seat at the Riviera theater today or tomorrow.

STRAND TODAY

Fred Stone has been called "The world's greatest entertainer," and he fully deserves the title.

His fame on the musical comedy stage is reflected in the throngs that pass into the theaters in which he appears and he goes steadily on, year after year, drawing capacity audiences so dear to the hearts of the managers who pay him his princely salary.

His popularity in motion pictures is just as great as on the stage for Fred Stone is a distinctive personality—a personality beloved by thousands upon thousands of theater-goers throughout the country.

In his most recent screen production, "Billy Jim," Mr. Stone brings into play all his skill at roping and

CASINO TODAY

Not only to the millions of motion picture fans all over the world, but "off-screen" to her intimate friends, Jane Novak is ever the sweet old-fashioned girl.

It is a surprise on meeting her to find a modern girl, modishly but modestly attired in the latest frock and hat. If you had worn but one evening gown in your entire film career, wouldn't you indulge in the very latest fashions when off-screen? So it is with Jane Novak.

But somehow, when one meets this exquisite young star—hears the low, modulated voice, sees the soft, dainty blonde beauty of face and hair, and observes the demure charm in her mannerisms, which today are thought quaint—then it is that one realizes her simplicity.

Jane Novak in "Belle of Alaska" will be offered at the Casino theater today.

YEOMEN EXAMINER, IS DEAD IN IOWA

Former La Crosse Alderman and School Board Member Passes Away on Sunday

Dr. Oliver G. Winters, chief medical examiner of the Brotherhood of American Yeomen, with headquarters in Des Moines, died Sunday evening, according to a message received Monday morning by H. A. Lee, head of the La Crosse Yeomen.

Dr. Winters was 65 years old. He was born and reared in La Crosse and at one time was an alderman from the Third ward and was a member of the board of education. He was an orgranizer of the La Crosse homestead of the Yeomen in 1901. Sixteen years ago he left La Crosse to go to Des Moines as head medical examiner of the order and resided there ever since. Dr. Winters was in La Crosse last January to attend the funeral of his brother, Jud Winters. He was not in good health at that time and gradually declined.

Surviving Dr. Winters are his son, Oliver G. Winters, Jr., and daughter, Mrs. Luella Schaeffer, and grandson, Winters Schaeffer all of Des Moines. Funeral arrangements are held in abeyance pending the receipt of word from Dr. Winters' sister who lives in San Lake City.

16 NETS SEIZED
BY GAUTSCH IN WAR ON SEINERS

Seins Taken Out of Running
Slough, Lagoon Entrance,
Dutch Creek, East Channel

The business of confiscating nets being illegally used by seiners in sloughs and creeks in the vicinity of La Crosse is picking up these days. In the past few days Conservation Warden Gausch has taken six nets, making a total of 16 nets in about five weeks. On Friday a buffalo net stretched across the entrance to the Pettibone park lagoon was seized. Three pound nets were hauled out of Running slough; one net was found in Dutch creek about a half mile from Running slough; a bait net was found under the tracks of the bridge in the Milwaukee road's "Y" over the marsh between the causeway and the river, and one net was taken out of east channel. The Wisconsin state conservation commission has forbidden seining in any waters but the main channel of the Mississippi river.

POPE PIUS THANKS K. OF C. FOR WORK STARTED IN ITALY

Gives Plot of Land Near Vatican for First Baseball Diamond

By EDWARD L. HEARN
European Commissioner of Knights of Columbus

ROME.—Pius XI will go down in history as the Young Man's Pope, for he has made it known that one of his prime concerns is the welfare of the youth of his native land.

As European commissioner of the Knights of Columbus it has been my privilege to have the longest private audience accorded so far by His Holiness to a layman. I laid before him the plans of the Knights of Columbus for the establishment and conduct of the $1,000,000 American welfare work which they have undertaken in Italy as a tribute to the memory of Columbus, their patron, and to the memory of the late Pope Benedict XV, who personally invited the Knights to take up this particular undertaking.

His Holiness received me cordially. He is a tall, athletically built man and he speaks English with very little accent, for an Italian. He reads it freely, too, often perusing London and American newspapers.

"I am glad to see you," he said, shaking my hand. "As the representative of the Knights of Columbus you are welcome to the Holy See. I salute you, too, as a knight commander of the Order of St. Gregory the Great."

The pope seated myself and my secretary comfortably. I drew out of my pocket papers on which the report had been carefully prepared. The pope smiled at their bulk and, with a gesture, indicated that I proceed. He heard me patiently, occasionally applauding with the English equivalent of the Italian "bravo" — "good."

When I reached the part of the report in which was stressed the importance of athletics as a medium of benefit for the Italian youth his face beamed.

"That is the thing for the boys," he declared. "They must have those games and the American games are especially fitted for the climate of Italy."

Pope Pius XI is famous, among his human qualifications, for a fondness for strenuous exercise. That explains his enthusiasm for the part of the K. of C. program calling for the introduction of baseball.

I had not gone far in explaining its merits as a health-builder and mental stimulant to youth when His Holiness arose suddenly from his chair and beckoned me to the large window of his study.

He pointed out beyond the screen over the dome of St. Peter's to a large plot of sandy turf.

"The Knights of Columbus shall have that site for their field," he declared, "so that I can see for myself from my study window what progress they are making here in the heart of Rome."

It was the first time in history that such an offer had been made by any pope. I was amazed, but His Holiness had evidently determined on this gift of papal land long before I saw him, for he reached into his drawer and drew out a large map.

"This map will be sent to you," he said. "It will show you clearly where this site is, and what its possibilities are for adaptability to the program of welfare work the Knights of Columbus undertake."

Headquarters in Rome

I then explained to His Holiness that the K. of C. had already taken up Roman headquarters at 25 Via Maratone, in the midst of the city and readily accessible to tourists. I informed His Holiness that in this headquarters the K. of C. had made arrangements to assist the comfort of the scores of Americans who would visit Rome for the great Eucharistic Congress during the last week of May.

"That is achievement," said the pope. "I am delighted."

He then dwelt upon the appropriateness of the Knights of Columbus returning to Italy, after their war work in that country for American service men.

"It is very fitting that you undertake this task," he said, "for it is no less important than any other kind of relief work. You will bring closer the relations between your country and Italy."

"I have a profound admiration for the idealism of America, which is none the less practical and one of the advantages to domestic morale of the extension to other countries of advantages which America enjoys."

Italy in Hard Straits

"Italy is still struggling under the economic disadvantages entailed by the war, and in coming to us with your strength you are bestowing upon us an unqualified blessing."

"Please," he asked me, before I quit the papal presence, "convey to the supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus and to the supreme officers and the members of the supreme board of directors and to every individual knight and their families, my fervent blessing. Their achievements for America have aroused my admiration. I have for some years watched their progress as an organization devoted to practical, patriotic work."

"I trust their example in Italy will be as effective as it is meritorious."

The interview had lasted 25 minutes.

City Band Gives a Picnic, Concert at Myrick Park

Musicians Hold Annual Jollification Sunday; Musical Program Given at Dusk

The City band gave their annual picnic Sunday afternoon in Myrick park. The musicians and their families and friends gathered in the park at 1 o'clock for an afternoon's play outdoors. The band rehearsed after which a ball game was staged. From 6:30 to 7:30 o'clock a band concert was given which was attended by several thousands.

clearing from his head he was crossing the storeroom with the easy panther tread—the result of former years of moccasin wearing.

In the open doorway he paused, leaned against the portal and hooked one thumb beneath his scarlet belt. His narrow eyes swept the scene before him. Across the bay, between purple hills, a valley lay dreaming in rose-lavender mist. Blue above the August haze was a glimpse of a glacier, and farther back peaks rose tier upon tier in the vague amethystine distance.

Suddenly the quiet beauty was shot through with the sound of loud voices and snatches of song issuing from the cabin of Kayak Bill. The trader listened with a smile that was half a sneer. He himself never drank while at the post, deeming that it lessened his influence with the Indians. But among the secrets of his own experience were memories of wild days and nights aboard visiting schooners, at the end of which, prone in the captain's bunk, he had lain for hours in alcoholic oblivion.

The voices from the cabin ceased abruptly. Then, like the bellow of a fog-horn on a lonely northern sea, came Kayak Bill's deep bass:

"Take me north of Old Point Barrow, Where there ain't no east or west; Where man has a thirst that lingers, And where whisky tastes the best. Where the Arctic ice pack hovers 'Twixt Alaska and the pole. And there ain't no bloomin' fashions To perplex a good man's soul."

Joining the bass of Kayak Bill, several voices took up the rollicking strain, among them the high, easily recognizable tenor of Silvertip, and the voice of another, a baritone of startling mellowness and purity, having in it a timbre of youth and recklessness:

Up into the Polar seas, Where the Innuut maidens be, There's a fat, bright-eyed va-hee-ney Awaite'n there for me. She's sittin' in her igloo cold, Chewing on a muckluck sole. And the sun comes up at midnight From an ice pack round the pole.

At the sound of the baritone the White Chief hitched his shoulders with a movement of satisfaction. Add-em-up's successor, the bookkeeper, was bidding fair to follow in the sullen footsteps of his predecessor. Given a little more time and this baritone singing cheechako (new-comer) would be where the White Chief needed have no anxiety as to the accounts rendered the company's new president, whom Kilbuck had never seen. A little more time, a little more hootch, and he would also have settled the case of Nalee-nah.

The thought of the Thinget girl's soft brown eyes brought a momentary pang. The white plague permitted few native women to become old. Twice now Naleenah had lost her voice, and only last night he had noticed behind her soft, singularly beautiful little ears the peculiar drawn look that to his practiced eye spelled tuberculosis. She would last two years more, perhaps, but in the meantime he must protect himself. He stirred uneasily. The bookkeeper must be made to take her off his hands.

INSTALLMENT I THE WHITE CHIEF OF KATLEEN

PREFACE.

This is no grim and gloomy tale of the silent snowbound north. There isn't a dance hall or a question from Robert W. Service in it. I am a cheerful, happy Alaskan, who loves the freedom found up here. All my days I have known the life of trading posts; danced at Thlinget Potlaches; sailed the waters of the North Pacific. I have searched for island gold—and found it; gone hungry and hunted my food. In this story I write of my own country and its people as I know them—not artfully, perhaps, but truthfully.

BARRETT WILLOUGHBY, Katla, Alaska.

NOTE: "Treacherous Love," by Barrett Willoughby, is one of the most thrilling stories of Alaskan love ever published. The author is particularly well qualified for the subject, as he has lived in Alaska and knows the north country thoroughly.

The story is entirely new. It has never before been published in any form. It was secured by The Chicago Tribune at great cost and will be published as a DAILY serial in The Chicago Tribune. This is the first installment as it appears in TODAY'S CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Read this. Then continue the story in TOMORROW'S CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE.

IT was quiet in the great storeroom of the Alaska Fur and Trading company's post at Kat-leen. The western sun streaming in through a side window lighted up shelves of brightly labeled canned goods and a long scarred counter piled high with gay blankets and men's rough clothing. Back of the big, pot-bellied stove—cold now—that stood near the center of the room, lidless boxes of hard tack and crackers yawned in open defiance of germs. An amber, mote-filled ray slanted toward the moss clinked log wall, where a row of dusty fox and wolverine skins hung—pelts discarded when the spring shipment of furs had been made, because of flaws visible only to expert eyes.

At the far end of the room the possessor of those expert eyes sat before a rough home made desk. There was a rustle of papers and he closed the ledger in front of him with an air of relief. He clapped his hands smartly. Almost on the instant the curtain hanging in the doorway at the side of the desk was drawn aside and a small, brown, feminine hand materialized.

"My cigarets, Decitan."

The man's voice was low, with that peculiar vibrant quality often found in the voices of men accustomed to command inferior people on the far outposts of civilization.

The curtain wavered again and from behind the folds a brown arm, bare and softly rounded, accompanied the hand that set down a tray of smoking materials.

With a careless nod toward his invisible servant, the man picked up a cigaret and lighted it. He took one long, deep pull. Tossing it aside he swung his chair about and faced the open doorway that gave on a courtyard and the bay beyond.

He readjusted the scarlet band above his narrow hips. Flannel shirted, high booted, he stretched his six foot length in the tilting chair and clasped his hands behind his head. The movement loosened a lock of black hair, which fell heavily across his forehead. His eyes, long, narrow, and the color of pale smoke, drowsed beneath brows that met above his nose. Thin, sharply defined nostrils quivered under the slightest emotion, and startling against the whiteness of his face was a short, pointed beard, black and silky as a woman's hair. When Paul Kilbuck, the white trader of Katleean, smiled, his thin, red lips parted over teeth white and perfect, but there was that in the long, pointed incisors that brought to mind the clean fangs of a wolf dog.

He closed his pale eyes now and smiled to himself. His work on the company's books was finished for the present. He hated the petty details of account keeping, but since the death of old Add-em-up Sam, his helper and accountant, who had departed this world six months before during a spell of delirium tremens, the trader had been obliged to do his own.

Queer and clever things had Add'em-up done to the books. Down in San Francisco the heads of the Alaska Fur and Trading company had long suspected it, no doubt, but it was not for nothing that Paul Kilbuck was known up and down the coast of Alaska as the White Chief. No other man in the north had such power and influence among the Thlinget tribes. No other man sent in such quantities of prime pelts; hence the White Chief of Katleean had never been obliged to give too strict an accounting of his stewardship. Taking what belongs to a company is not, in the elastic code of the north, considered stealing. "God is high above and the Czar is far away," said the plundering, roistering old Russians of Baranoff's day, and the spirit in the isolated posts had not changed, though Russian adventurers came no more to rape Alaska of her riches, and the Stars and Stripes now floats over the oldtime Russian stronghold at Sitka.

For eighteen years Kilbuck had been the agent of the company. In trading posts up and down the coast where the trappers and prospectors gather to outfit, many tales of the White Chief were afloat; his trips to the Outside (the name by which the States is designated in the north); his lavish spending of money; his hiring of private cars to take him from Seattle to New York; his princely entertainment of beautiful women. In every story told of Paul Kilbuck there were women. Sometimes they were white, but more often they were dusky beauties of the north.

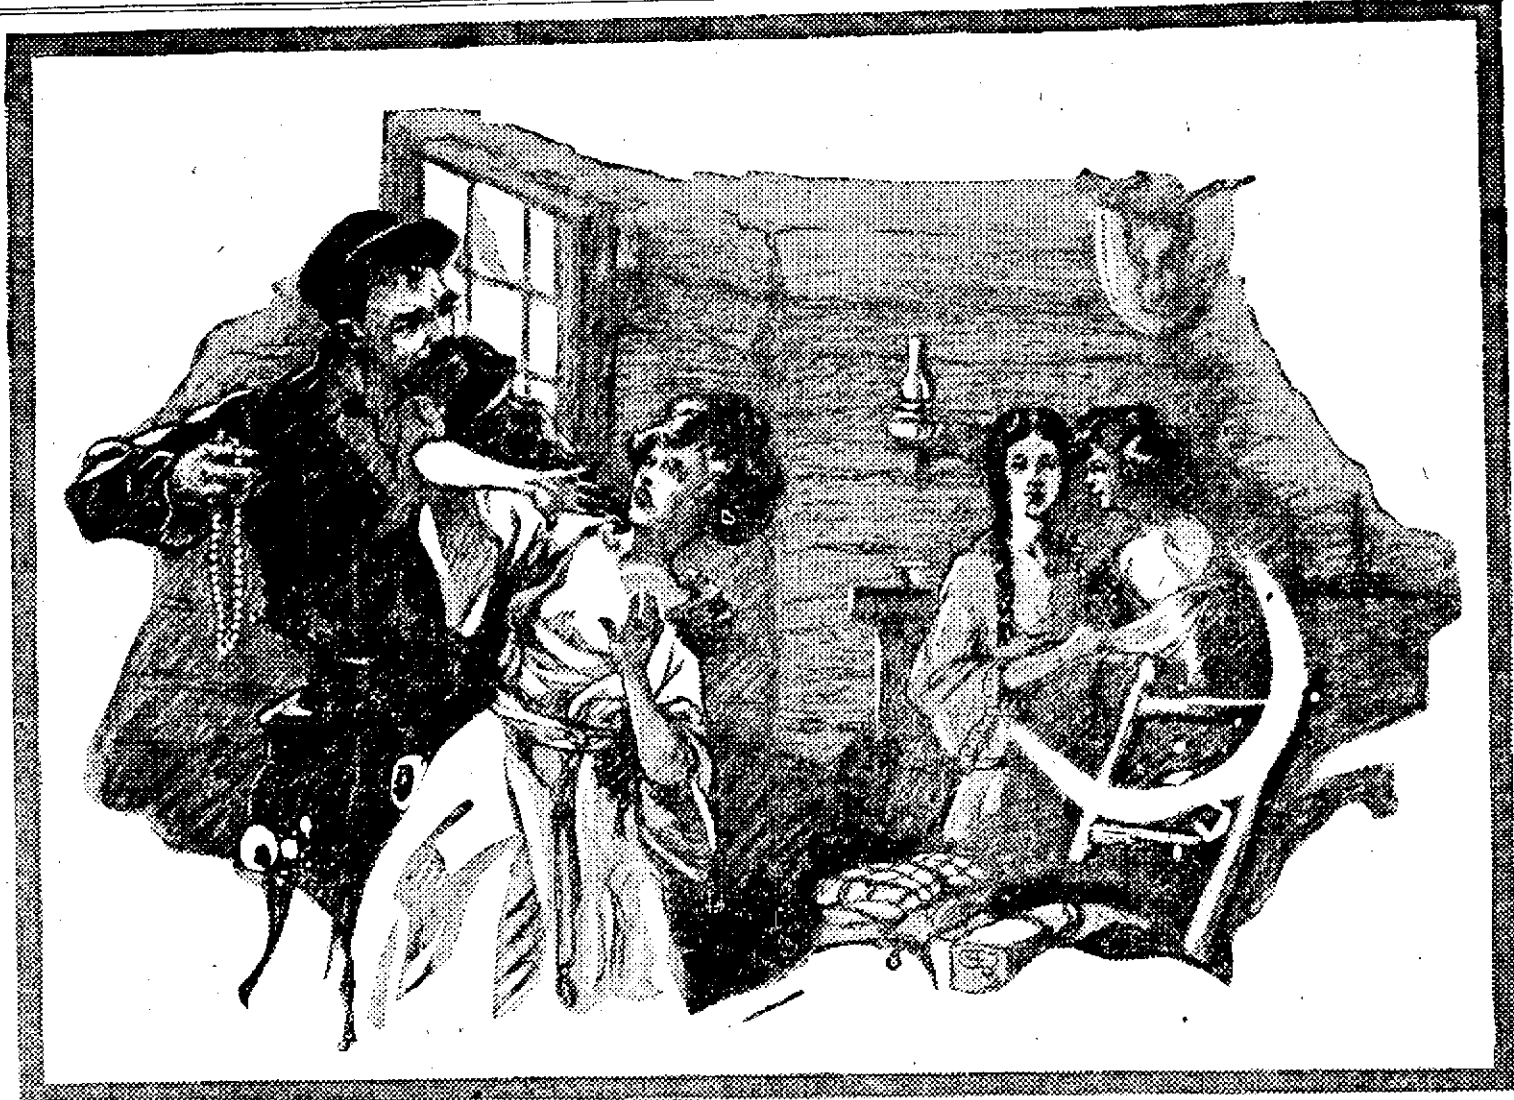

Among the several dark eyed Thlinget women who occupied the mysterious quarters back of the log store, there was always rejoicing when the White Chief returned from his visits to the States. He was a generous master, bringing back with him many presents from the land of the white people—rings, beads, trinkets, and yards of bright colored silks.

The favorites of his household fondled these gifts for a time with soft, guttural cries of delight and gentle strokings of their slim, brown hands, and then laid them away in fantastically carved Indian chests of yellow cedar.

Perhaps the strangest of these gifts had been a pair of homing pigeons, which had thrived and multiplied under the care of Add'em-up Sam. A fluttering of wings now outside the doorway bespoke the presence of some of them, and Kilbuck stirred in his chair and opened his eyes.

He had been many hours alone in the store, but he had been prepared for that today. The entire post of Katleean was getting ready for the potlach, an Indian festival scheduled for the near future. For this occasion Kayak Bill, in his carefully secreted still across the lagoon, had completed a particularly potent batch of moonshine, known locally as hootch. The arrival, earlier in the afternoon, of the jocos old hootchmaker with a canoe load of his fiery beverage had been a signal for a gathering at his cabin across the courtyard. From the sounds that now floated out on the late afternoon air, he must already have distributed generous samples of his brew.

The White Chief rose from his chair and reached for another cigaret. As usual, he tossed it away after one long, deep inhalation. Before the smoke

Several dark eyed Thlinget women occupied the mysterious quarters back of the log store. He was a generous master, bringing back with him many presents—rings, beads, trinkets. . . . The favorites of his household fondled these gifts with soft, guttural cries of delight. . . .
